

Getting to Know Native Land

What are land acknowledgements?

Land acknowledgements are a way in which individuals insert awareness of Indigenous presence and land rights in everyday life. Typically this is done at the start of lectures, ceremonies, or education guides. Although it is explicit, it may be limiting when recognizing the history of colonialism.

What native land do you occupy?

Use the <https://native-land.ca/> website to research what native land you occupy. Then proceed to answer the questions listed below.

QUESTIONS TO ANSWER:

1. What is the name of the Indigenous territory you live on? (If you don't live on one, pick one that is relatively close).
2. How many languages are present?
3. Research the Indigenous tribe and state 2 facts about their culture.
4. What's something you didn't know, but managed to learn after visiting the website?